

Christianity and Science

Christianity and Culture is a college-based, non-departmental, undergraduate program of the Faculty of Arts and Science at the University of Toronto. It is based at St. Michael's College, a Catholic College federated with the University. The Program is dedicated to a multi-disciplinary study of Christianity, its traditions, self-understanding, and interaction with world culture.

The Program invites applications for a University of Toronto tenure-stream position at the level of Assistant Professor in the area of Christianity and Science, commencing July 1, 2007.

Undergraduate teaching responsibilities will include providing courses in one or more of the following areas: Christianity and Science, Faith and Physics, Christianity and the Life Sciences, Christianity and New Technologies, and a course in the candidate's own field of expertise. Teaching load will be 2.5 full-year courses (including graduate instruction).

Graduate teaching and supervision will be based in the Institute for the History and Philosophy of Science and Technology, in which the position holder will be a member and will hold tenure, if it is granted.

Research expectations are commensurate with those of a research-intensive university. Moreover, the appointment includes an expectation of full membership in College life.

The successful applicant will have a baccalaureate (or higher) degree in one of the following areas: physics, chemistry, biology, geology, or astronomy; and a doctoral degree that demonstrates engagement with the interface of Christianity and science. The successful candidate will also have demonstrated or have the potential for excellence in research and teaching, and knowledge and appreciation of the traditions of Catholic life and thought.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Please submit an application and arrange for three letters of reference to be sent to Professor Mark G. McGowan, Office of the Principal, St. Michael's College, 81 St. Mary Street, Toronto, M5S 1J4 by October 20, 2006. All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority. The University of Toronto is strongly committed to diversity within its community and especially welcomes applications from visible minority group members, women, Aboriginal persons, persons with disabilities, members of sexual minority groups, and others who may contribute to further diversification of ideas.
